Cruzio, The Internet Store, Inc. is a 21-year-old ISP located in Santa Cruz, California.

We approve of the FCC's efforts to recapture Internet transit under Title II. Regulation has been sorely lacking in the Internet industry in the past decade and this has hurt the industry. In particular, we are discouraged at the diminished ability of independent ISPs to obtain transit on telecommunications infrastructure.

We speak for our 20,000 users as well as for our company itself.

Without regulation, content on the Internet has become too closely tied to the owner of the delivery system. Barriers to entry are ever higher, and the industry has grown increasingly monopolistic. Entrepreneurship, innovation, and competition are in decline. This field is too vital to our national interests to allow to fail.

Thank you,

Margaret Dolgenos
